

FURROW TEXTURED GLASS

PRODUCT INFORMATION

The pattern in our Furrow Textured Glass is produced with a revolutionary reverse-mold technology. Rather than protruding outward, each Furrow or Flute is an indented, scalloped flute, much like the old antique style of fluted glass. A light texture is created on the entire surface of the glass, creating a higher level of opacity, and providing a more muted surface. The back surface of the glass remains quite flat and even.

Furrow Textured Glass can be produced in tempered or laminated safety glass, with or without added colored or frosted finishes.
